Woods Address At Edmonton Was Criticized

(As reported in the Edmonton Bulletin—Reprinted by request—Editor)

After operating with special exactness and smoothness during the last week or so, the elegant "Where city and country meet" back-fired rather shamefully toward the end of the meeting held in First Baptist church Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing a "political reform association."

Mr. Bickerson Pratt was the chairman of the meeting, and upon invitation there were present on the evening's platform, and spoke: H. W. Wood, minister of the U.F.A.; Hon. Mrs. Perley, minister without portfolio in the provincial cabinet; A. F. Ewing, late Conservative member for West Edmonton in the legislature; Robt. McCreath, president of the Trades and Labor Council; Ald. Jas. Adair, of the city council, and Alex. Stuart, K.C.

Political Reform

Events moved quietly enough until after H. W. Wood, in the course of an address, had developed an elaborate system of political platform based on group mobilization of citizenship to take the place of "individualism," which he charged with being the root of all evil in the present systems of government. He was followed by A. F. Ewing, who voiced an emphatic and eloquent protest against the maligning of modern systems of democratic government and the abuse of past and present public men generally.

Political Reform

It was Alderman Adair however, who started reactions. He attacked openly the statements and opinions of Mr. Wood, charging that the United Farmers practically sought to disfranchise all people outside the pale of economic group organization, and that, while Canada was being called upon to help to feed starving Russia, Canadians were being told to discard their systems of government and adopt that of Russia, which allowed misery and starvation to exist on such a stupendous scale.

F. H. Herbert and other members of the U.F.A. in the big audience, took vigorous umbrage at the statement and interchange between the speaker and certain sections of the crowd was heated at times. The preponderating element in the audience however, came to the rescue of Alderman Adair at times howled down opposition. After Mr. Adair had proceeded to challenge his critics to show that the cities were not being discriminated against in Alberta by the government, and had closed his address with an appeal for the farmers and all other parties to think outside their own ranks, F. W. Herbert took the platform to declare that Ald. Adair deliberately perverted the truth when he said the U.F.A. was seeking the establishment of a government like Russia's in Canada. He also challenged the statement of Alex Stuart, K.C., to the effect that Mr. Wood advocated the creation of a group citizenship along military lines, so that the leaders of the farmers' movement could be commander in chief. Mr. Herbert declared that the farmers' group movement was solely locally organ-

A. Taylor Killed By Gun Accident At McLaughlin

There was a very large number of friends and neighbours present at the funeral of Art Taylor, at Lloydminster last Thursday. The deceased was a victim of gun accident whilst hunting geese in the McLaughlin district, Saturday October 8th. The party, consisting of Dr. A. Cooke, G. Cairns and the deceased were crouching behind a stock waiting for the geese to come along. Their guns were lying on the ground; after a while they heard the geese, and Taylor suggested that they separate and get behind other stock. They both jumped from behind the stock they had been hiding under, when the doctor heard a yell and the explosion of a gun. On looking back he saw Taylor with his hand to his hip. He immediately went to him and found he had been hit in the hip. The doctor had dressing with him and rendered prompt assistance, staunching the flow of blood after a few minutes. Help was got and the injured man taken to Lloydminster, where he was operated upon. It was at first believed that the injured man would be able to pull through, but despite every attention the injured finally succumbed

HOW CANADA IS GOVERNED

THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE DOMINION

This minister is the head of the department of colonial affairs, all possessions of the crown in India, being designated colonies. It is for this important minister to see that a seat in the cabinet is secured to bring the action of the house before the king. The secretary of state for the dominion is also responsible for the defense of the dominions.

The council on its arrival to introduce and pass bills in parliament as will insure the difficulty that has occurred.

By the constant interchange of communications between the imperial and dominion governments are come into question, which requires adjustment and any friction in the relations governments is thus prevented.

THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE

The king's court in Canada administers justice in Canada in all cases affecting Canadians, whether criminal or civil nature, in accordance with the rights of self-government accorded by law, to the provinces.

Appeals are made to the judicial committee from Canada if the judicial committee grants leave, and from the superior courts of the provinces, to the judicial committee of the privy council under certain prescribed conditions.

The judicial committee is composed of eminent judges—generally four or five, though three are a quorum, who hear arguments and finally report their decision to the king in council. This decision is authoritative and settles the case.

CANADIAN RIGHTS OF SELF GOVERNMENT

It is a fundamental principle of the English constitution, as shown above, that people under English government can tax only with their own consent, given through their representatives.

The imperial parliament having granted to Canada a complete system of local self-government, with full control over taxation and expenditures, it is now in Canadian parliaments—and I have heard provincial legislatures—that Canadian taxes can be imposed on authority and the expenditures of Canadian money authorized and controlled.

If at any time Canada requires imperial legislation, or any subject not within her legislative control, she appeals to the king in council on the way I have described.

The imperial parliament cannot in its own motion constitutionally interfere with rights of local self-government granted to the dependencies.

MAKING OF TREATIES

With FOREIGN POWERS

The king's government alone, as the supreme executive of the empire, can negotiate treaties with foreign sovereign nations. Canada being only a dependency cannot of her motion or action give validity to a treaty with a sovereign nation. It is through the imperial government that all treaties immediately affecting her must be made.

The threshing rig and crew were just moving off, having travelled about fifty feet when it happened. The roof boards and sides were thrown some distance with great force, and had the crew still been there, a serious accident might have occurred very easily.

Duncan Marshall Has Splendid Barn Destroyed By Fire

Fire completely destroyed a large barn on the farm of Duncan Marshall, former minister of agriculture for Alberta near Eye Hill on Oct. 15. The fire, which was caused by a gas-conflagration, was put out by a gas-engine however the fire was catching a large quantity of loose hay which were immediately let loose, and although one pure-bred cow is missing, it is believed she may turn up as the animals were badly scalded and bolted in different directions from the blazing building, which burned itself out without involving other buildings. Some of Mr. Marshall's prize stock was in the building but escaped.

Cost of Establishing A Tree Windbreak

The actual cost of setting out a tree-plantation in the case of a farmer is difficult to figure out. As a rule this work is done by the ordinary labor available on the farm usually does not entail the actual disbursement of cash for additional labor. If we say it costs $5 per acre or $8 per acre to set out a plantation it really conveys very little, as this cost depends entirely on the rate of wages paid. The best way to state the cost is to figure on the actual time required to plant so many trees or to find out the number of trees a man can plant on the average in a working day of ten hours.

On the Nursery Station at Indian Head, Sask., approximately 100 acres have been set out in plantations spaced about four feet apart each way. The first plantings were made in 1905 and have been added to more or less each season. The method of planting followed has generally been to plough furrows. It has not been found that the use of men employed makes much difference in the number of trees that can be set in a day, provided a teamster also plants if the men do not keep up with the plough.

At Indian Head it has been found that on an average $31 acres per day can be set by each man in the gang, including the teamster. The highest number on record here is 1,380 per day per man and the lowest 670 per day per man. Where only one or two species are planted more trees can be set in a given time than where four or five species are planted together.—N. M. Ross, Dom. Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head, Sask.

HOW CANADA IS GOVERNED

It is, however, now an understanding, or even maxim of the policy governing the relations between England and the Canadian Dominion, that Canadian representatives shall be chosen and clothed with all necessary authority by the king in council to arrange treaties immediately affecting Canada, and that all such treaties must be ratified by the Canadian parliament.

WHEN CANADIAN LEGISLATIVE ACTS MAY BE "DISALLOWED"

It is a provision of the Canadian constitution that every act passed by the parliament of Canada must be submitted by the governor-general to the king in council.

This is a declaration of the sovereign authority of the imperial parliament, and it is within the power of the king in council, responsible for the unity and security of the whole empire, to refuse to consent to, or in constitutional language, to "disallow" an act which is in conflict with the interests of the empire at large, may threaten its integrity, or is at variance with treaties between England and any other foreign nation.

It would be unconstitutional, however, for the imperial government to interfere if any matter clearly and exclusively within the authority of the dominion government.

When the imperial parliament gave Canada a federal union and a complete system of local self-government and the right to legislate on certain subjects as forth in the constitution (The British North America Act of 1867), it gave her full control of all such matters, and constitutionally withdrew all interference in the strictly internal concerns of the Dominion.

It is only when the interests of the empire are in direct conflict with the private extended to the dependency that the sovereign authority of England should be brought into action.

The sovereign authority should never be arbitrarily or indiscreately used, but should only be used after full discussion between the governments of England and the dependency, so that the interests of the two may be brought, as far as possible, into harmony with each other.

IMPERIAL CONTROL IS EXERCISED OVER CANADA

Imperial control is exercised over Canada:—

1. Through the governor-general appointed by the sovereign in council.
2. Through the power of the imperial parliament to pass legislation.
3. Through the power of the sovereign to disallow legislation passed by the parliament of Canada;

4. Through the powers exercised by the judicial committee of the privy council as the final court of appeal—(the privy council must decide all cases in conformity with the law, it cannot, perhaps, strictly speaking, be said to exercise a control).

5. Through the inability of Canada to enter into treaties with foreign countries except through the imperial authorities.

THIRD PART

CHAPTER I.

THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT EXECUTIVE POWER

In the previous chapter I have given a short summary of the different authorities that govern the empire as a whole, and now come to the federal government of the Dominion itself. This government is divided among the following authorities:—

1. The sovereign, as a head of the executive, represented by a governor-general.

2. A cabinet, members of the privy council for Canada forming the advisory council of the sovereigns representative usually called the "Government."

3. A parliament, exercising legislative functions as a court of appeal from the courts of the provinces, and for the settlement of constitutional difficulties; and the other courts enforcing the various Dominion laws.

The duties of these separate authorities will now be explained.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

The king is the head of the executive government of Canada. He is as much sovereign of Canada as of England or of Scotland or of Ireland, and his supreme power must be acknowledged in all executive or legislative acts of this dependency.

As the king is unable to be present in person in Canada he is represented by a governor-general appointed by his majesty in council.

This functionary, chosen from public men of high standing in England, has double responsibilities, for he is at once the governor-in-chief of a great dependency, who acts under the advice of a ministry responsible to parliament, and he is at the same time guardian of the imperial interests.

He is bound by the terms of his commission and can only exercise such authority as is expressly or implicitly entrusted to him by the king. He must report regularly upon all those imperial and other matters on which the secretary of state for the colonies should be informed. Bills reserved for consideration of the imperial government are forwarded by him to the secretary of state for the colonies with his reasons for reserving them.

The British North America Act provides that copies of all acts of the Canadian parliament shall be sent by him to the secretary of state for the colonies, that they may be duly considered and disallowed within two years in case they are found to conflict with imperial interests or are beyond the legitimate powers of Canada as a dependency.

The governor-general, as the head of the executive of Canada, assembles, prorogues and dissolves parliament and assents to bills in the name of his majesty; but, in the discharge of these and all other executive duties, he acts entirely in accordance with the advice of his council, who must always have the support of the house of commons.

Even in matters of imperial interest affecting Canada he consults with his council and submits their views to the colonial secretary of state in England.

On Canadian questions clearly within the constitutional jurisdiction of the Dominion he cannot act apart from his advisers, but is bound by their advice. Should he differ from them on some vital question of prinprinciple or policy he must either recede from his own position or be prepared to accept the great responsibility of dismissing them; but the dismissal of a ministry is an extreme exercise of authority and not in consonance with the general constitutional practice of modern times, when his advisers have a majority in the popular branch of the legislature.

Should he, however, feel compelled by very extraordinary circumstances to resort to the extreme exercise of his power, he must find another body of advisers ready to assume full responsibility for his action and its consequences before the house and country.

For every man in Canada and in the colonies there must be someone immediately responsible, apart from the governor himself. But a governor, unlike a sovereign, cannot be "freed from responsibility for his acts or be allowed to excuse a violation of the law on the plea of having followed the counsels of evil advisers."

Cases may arise when the governor-general will be unable to come to a conclusion on a matter involving important consequences, and then it is quite proper for him to seek advice from his official staff, the secretary of state for the colonies, even if he is a matter not involving imperial interests.

The royal prerogative of mercy, i.e.—the pardoning of convicted criminals, or reducing their punishment—is no longer exercised on the sole judgement and responsibility of the governor-general, but is administered pursuant to the advice of the minister of justice, or in capital cases—capital cases are those in which the sentence is death—or the advice of the cabinet.

With respect to the allowance or disallowance of provincial acts, ever since the coming into force of the British North America Act, the governor-general has invariably acted on the advice of his ministers, and has never asserted the right to act otherwise. Even in the exercise of the all-important prerogative of dissolving parliament, which essentially rests in the crown, it acts on the advice of his ministers.

Occupying a position of neutrality between opposing political parties, and having no possible object in view except to promote the usefulness and dignity of his high office, the governor-general must necessarily, in the discharge of his important functions, have many opportunities of aiding the interests of the country over whose government he presides.

Although the initiation of public measures necessarily rests with the ministry, yet there are numerous occasions when his council is invaluable in dealing with matters of the gravest political concern. If we could see into the inner councils of government, we would be surprised at the influence a prudent and conscientious governor can and does exercise in the administration of public affairs.

While he continues to be drawn from the ranks of distinguished Englishmen, he evokes respect as a link between the parent state and its dependency. In the performance of his social duties, he is brought into contact with all shades of opinion, and yields an influence that may elevate social life, and soften the bitterness of public controversy.

In the tours he takes from time to time throughout the dominion, he is able to make himself acquainted with all classes and interests, and, by the information he gathers, of the resources of the country, he can make himself an important agent in the development of Canada. In the encouragement of science, art and literature, he has always a fruitful field in which he may perform invaluable service.

ed when he said he desired to protest against general statements that public men were dishonest and true to their trust. Again and again he had known public men to do service and make sacrifices of which the people never heard. Public men actually untrue to their trust were few and far between. He believed the heart of the Canadian people to be sound, and it was impossible for most to practise corruption and live.

Mr Ewing pointed out that bills could not be brought about by mere legislation. People could not be reformed by statutes. The overwhelming sentiment of the people must be behind the laws. What was most needed was a campaign of education so that it would be dangerous for public men to go wrong. He disclaimed connection with any movement to destroy the existing system of government solely for the sake of supplanting it with another so nebulous that he had scarcely been able to follow the expounder in the previous speech. (Laughter). However, Mr Ewing advocated changes in election procedure, whereby the machinery of election would be elevated to a plane beyond the reach of party. He commended British election machinery in this respect. Returning officers and enumerators should be citizens above reproach. As for the reduction of election expenses, Mr Ewing pointed out that electors practically demand to be taken to the polls in candidates' conveyances. He protested against that and suggested good and sufficient reason for that where an elector could not show good and sufficient reason for not voting at an election that the franchise should be taken away from such person for a period of years.

Alderman Joseph Adair

Alderman Joseph Adair referred to the system of British elections, and dwelt upon the fact that fifty years ago corruption existed, hat world not be toleriated in Canada today, but reforms had rendered election machinery of the present day the most efficient in any democratic system of government. This system had enabled Britain to stand the strain of war and its aftermath better than any other nation.

The principle of group government as expounded by H. W. Wood was the object of attack by Mr Adair. He expressed a desire that Mr Wood had remained at no meetings for a further discussion of the question. He would like to explain how the poor people in municipalities would be able to find themselves up at the dark toward political parties and how a linotype like himself could organize a group like the one he held a plow. He traced the growth of government in Russia, showing that owing to geo-political conditions the Soviet form of government was a natural evolution. But he refused to be told that because Russia of necessity had adopted occupational group government that Canada should adopt the same system. He was unalterably opposed to the doctrine that Canada should discard a system of government for the sake of adopting one under which people had ceased work and were starving in millions. "We are being invited to help feed the starving people of Russia and at the same time change our system of government to one like theirs which allows people to starve." I have faith in British ideals and the British system of government to one like theirs the government. I am willing to study Russia's system, but I refuse to swallow all the Lenin-Trotsky propaganda that is being spread over this country."

The Plow Maker

Mr Adair raised further storms in the house when he declared that the farmers by organizing had practically disfranchised every person not a farmer, or a farmer's wife in the province. He argued that industry was inter-related, so that a man making plows was more of a farmer than was the farmer who followed the oxen year ago. If everyone turned farmer there would be no market, and industrial stagnation would result. He advised that people in the cities were being hopelessly handicapped by the farmers and that the cities of the province were carrying that would have to be lightened for the sake of the community at large. He appealed to the farmers to think outside their party, as he appealed to others to think outside their old party lines.

What Farmers Lack

Alex. Smith, K. C., spoke a few minutes earlier declaring that Mr Wood did not know as much about the politics of the country, as he thought he knew. Honor, integrity and grit had been manifested in the public service by the public men of Canada, and the trouble of the day distinctly states that pupils attending a day school shall assemble for study at nine o'clock in the forenoon and shall be dismissed not later than four o'clock in the afternoon, citing an English case of the same nature as the one before the Perth court and in which a regulation similar to the one urged by himself, had been sustained by the Judge. Mr Costello argued that this English regulation has binding force in Ontario. Detention after hours for delinquency on the part of the pupils is a time-honored institution. It has been proved that the right of a teacher to "keep in" is no longer questioned. With this argument of Mr Costello's side Scott agreed.
